Course Description

We will examine central themes in the philosophical systems of some 17th Century ‘rationalist’ philosophers: René Descartes, Princess Elisabeth of Bohemia, Nicolas Malebranche, Benedict de Spinoza, Gottfried Leibniz, and Émilie du Châtelet. The issues taken up by these philosophers, and how they came to grip with them, helped define modern conceptions of the world and our place in it. We will focus on what these philosophers wrote about metaphysics and epistemology. Topics to be discussed include: scepticism about the external world; free will; the mind-body problem; the existence of God; causality and substance; the nature of philosophical explanation.

Course Readings

Readings will be made available on Canvas. Students who wish to purchase hard copies are welcome to do so. The following translations will be used:

Course Business

1. Plagiarism and Academic Misconduct. Plagiarism, which is intellectual theft, occurs where an individual submits or presents the oral or written work of another person as his or her own. Scholarship quite properly rests upon examining and referring to the thoughts and writings of others. However, when another person’s words (i.e. phrases, sentences, or paragraphs), ideas, or entire works are used, the author must be acknowledged in the text, in footnotes, in endnotes, or in another accepted form of academic citation. Where direct quotations are made, they must be clearly delineated (for example, within quotation marks or separately indented). Failure to provide proper attribution is plagiarism because it represents someone else’s work as one’s own. Plagiarism should not occur in submitted drafts or final works. A student who seeks assistance from a tutor or other scholastic aids must ensure that the work submitted is the student’s own. Students are responsible for ensuring that any work submitted does not constitute plagiarism. Students who are in any doubt as to what constitutes plagiarism should consult their instructor before handing in any assignments. Please see this link for more information on academic misconduct: <http://www.calendar.ubc.ca/Vancouver/index.cfm?tree=3,54,111,959>
2. How to Avoid Plagiarising: Most students plagiarise because they believe themselves to be without options. But no student will ever be without options in this course. If you find yourself in trouble, and tempted to cheat, contact your professor or your TA immediately. If you haven’t yet cheated, a solution can always be found.
3. Late Penalties. This will be a challenging and fast-paced course. It is highly recommended that you attend every class meeting and get your work in on time. The late penalty on the papers is set at 1/3 of a letter grade per day, to a maximum of three days (this includes weekends/holidays). Any work outstanding beyond this point will receive a grade of 0.

4. Concessions. If you need a extension on an assignment (due to a medical or family emergency, for example) please contact Arts Advising. All concession requests must go through Arts Advising or the equivalent.
5. Your Course Contact. Your professor and your TA are your primary contacts. We will respond to all emails within 48 hours. If you have substantive philosophical questions, I encourage you to come and see us in office hours or set up an appointment.
6. Special Accommodations. Students requesting special accommodation should contact UBC's Centre for Accessibility and talk to the professor.
7. UBC provides resources to support student learning and to maintain healthy lifestyles but recognizes that sometimes crises arise and so there are additional resources to access including those for survivors of sexual violence. UBC values respect for the person and ideas of all members of the academic community. Harassment and discrimination are not tolerated nor is suppression of academic freedom. UBC provides appropriate accommodation for students with disabilities and for religious and cultural observances. UBC values academic honesty and students are expected to acknowledge the ideas generated by others and to uphold the highest academic standards in all of their actions. Details of the policies and how to access support are available here (<https://senate.ubc.ca/policiesresources-support-student-success>)
